Conscription Ballot Delayed

FOES CONTINUE TO HURL BLASTS AT DRAFT BILL

F. D. To Sign Act As Soon As It Is Passed To Speed Actual Operation

SEN. HAYDEN GIVES UP

Fiscal Leaders Prepare To Appropriate Money To Finance Training

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—Congressional leaders today sought final approval of the conscription bill, with bitter-end foes still unleashing blasts against it.

Fiscal leaders, confident that the measure will be oked, prepared to rush through a bill appropriating between $1,750,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 to finance the draft and training of the National Guard.

Both senate and house were to be asked to adopt the compromise which put the conscription bill in its final form, with provisions for selecting 900,000 men from between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, for a year's training and service.

One of the most controversial issues—the Hayden-Fish amendment which prohibited induction of draftees until 60 days after a call for volunteers had been issued—apparently has been definitely shelved.

"The matter was voted on in the senate and the amendment was rejected," said Sen. Hayden (D) Ariz., who sponsored the provision originally. "I don't intend to make any motion myself. I do not think the senate would reject the conference report."

Rep. Fish (R) N. Y., who succeeded in getting the amendment into the house bill, only to see it tossed out by committees ironing out senate-house differences, was told by parliamentarians that he cannot raise the issue again.

Delay Possible

While Senate Majority Leader Barkley hoped for adoption of the compromise with little debate, it appeared likely that a major fight and extended debate might delay a vote.

The new appropriation necessary because of the draft bill is expected to lift the defense appropriation to almost $17,000,000,000.

"The tentative estimates are that between $1,750,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 will be needed for the National Guard and the draft training," said Rep. Woodrum (D) Va. "Part of this money will be for barracks and housing. Not all will be spent the first year. Part also will be to pay for the $400,000,000 annual pay raise for

Scene of Powder Plant Blast in Jersey That Killed Many

HERE are the smoking ruins of the Kenil, N. J., plant of the Hercules Powder company, which was wrecked by a series of explosions killing over 30 workmen and causing damage to New Jersey and New York state towns many miles distant. The danger from huge stores of explosives was so great that the wide-spread blaze which followed the blasts was unchecked as firemen as well as civilians were withdrawn from the area. Much of the gunpowder being manufactured was on order from the American and British governments.

IRON GUARDISTS MENACING PEACE IN NEW ROMANIA

BUDAPEST, Sept. 13—Amid new anti-government demonstrations in Bucharest, pro-Fascist Iron Guards today were reportedly planning a coup d'etat against the Romanian government.

Openly defying a ban on uniforms ordered by Romania's new dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, thousands of Iron Guards last night thronged Bucharest streets singing seditious songs.

Fears that the Iron Guards, storm center of Romanian politics for the last decade, would attempt to oust Antonescu and seize control of the government were expressed in dispatches reaching Budapest which said that a "show down" between the new dictator and Horia Sima, leader of the Iron Guards, was inevitable.

Antonescu, seeking to keep the situation under control, issued a new appeal to the Iron Guard to respect and preserve public order by discipline and self-control. Despite this appeal serious disorders were expected tonight and great numbers of troops were concentrated in Bucharest.

F. D. R. TIGHTENS BAN ON EXPORT OF PLANE PLANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—In a further move to tighten the export ban on vital national defense materials, President Roosevelt today placed a virtual embargo on aircraft plans and specifications.

The President issued a proclamation requiring that the following items be licensed before the export could be effected:

"Equipment used for the production of aviation motor fuel and tetra ethyl lead or any plans or specifications useful in the design, construction, or operation of such equipment or in connection with such processes.

"Plans, specifications and descriptive or technical information of any kind setting forth the design or construction of aircraft or aircraft engines."

IMMEDIATE PROBE OF BLAST URGED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—A resolution demanding an immediate congressional investigation of possible sabotage in the Hercules Powder Company explosion at Kenil, N. J., was placed before the house today by Rep. Anderson (D) Mo.

In the formal document, the Missourian asked that a committee of five be named to conduct hearings "to determine if there is evidence of sabotage in this or in other national defense plants."

The resolution was introduced amidst widespread demand on Capitol Hill for a thorough investigation of the tragic blast which wrecked buildings and killed an undetermined number.

ALBANIANS MAY TWO FUGITIVES ASK GREECE TO CEDE TERRITORY AT DRUG STORE

TIRANA, Sept. 13—The national Albanian assembly will be convoked in the near future to consider territorial demands on Greece, it was learned in reliable government quarters today.

The assembly will discuss Albanian minorities presently living outside of the homeland. It is understood the government will demand the whole Grecian province of Ciamuria and part of Janina. Government quarters in this Italian-occupied capital point out that the only Balkan countries in which minority aspirations remain unsettled are Greece and Yugoslavia.

Rumors that Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano will address the assembly were discounted. Rome's only interest it was explained, is to remain vigilant and prepared to frustrate any British attempt to land troops at Salonika on the Aegean Sea.

MUMAW HEARING STARTS AT 7:30 THIS EVENING

Safety Director Karl Herrmann said Friday that he was prepared to hear the case of Charles Mumaw, suspended Circleville patrolman, in the city council chamber Friday at 7:30 p. m.

Attorneys Ray Davis and C. A. Leist for Mumaw and Paul Adkins for Police Chief William McCrady have indicated that they are prepared to have the hearing as scheduled.

Mumaw has been charged by Chief McCrady with having solicited bribes from Circleville gambling interests.

DUCE'S BOMBERS ATTACK BRITISH AREAS IN EAST

ROME, Sept. 13—The Italian air force today carried out vast raids on British positions in Egypt, East Africa, the Sudan, and Kenya in the wake of reports that a major Fascist offensive against Egypt may be under way.

Military authorities declined to state definitely whether the drive against Egypt had been launched, but a high command communique reflected an Italian intensification of the campaign both in air and on the sea.

LONDON, Sept. 13—Authoritative London quarters denied today that an Italian offensive against Egypt has been launched as yet.

But they admitted that considerable evidence has been gathered regarding preparations for an Italian three-point attack against Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan which may begin in the near future.

It was pointed out that troop concentrations have been observed on the Libyan frontier near Fort Capuzzo.

Furthermore, the Italians have been intensifying land and air activity on the Egyptian, Sudan and Kenya frontiers.

Attack On Empire's King Good Way To Irk British

By J. C. Oestreicher
I.N.S. Foreign Editor

If the bombing attack on Buckingham Palace today was a deliberate attempt to assassinate King George and Queen Elizabeth as a means of terrorizing the British Empire into submission, Nazi Germany is on the wrong track entirely.

It is distinctly the improper way to go about it, as the British themselves would say.

The incident which shocked the empire and the world today will merely make the British people angrier than ever. If either of the sovereigns had been killed or injured, the effect would have been to lift the entire empire to its feet as a single man with one last unquenchable vow — to kill Adolf Hitler in revenge.

The king of England enjoys a peculiar position.

He has no power. He has little

Berlin Declares Damage On London Much Worse Than British Admit

BERLIN, Sept. 13—The British government is hiding the true extent of damage wrought on London by Nazi air raiders and the capital as vital nerve center of the empire has already been "mortally wounded," official German circles charged today.

Within the next eight days, official spokesmen declared, London is bound to become "a paralyzed, broken corpse, crippled for generations."

Reconnaissance flights by German planes, it was said, are establishing the fact that London's holocaust exceeds the historic burnings of Carthage and Rome, while the damage done in this war to Warsaw and Rotterdam will be regarded as eventually as a "mere fractional preliminary."

Official German quarters declare that in the future London will be known only as "a historic city which after reaching the zenith of its glory in the first half of the twentieth century crumbled into ruins and sank into the minor ranks of world cities."

A graphic glimpse into behind-the-scenes activities of the men and machines engaged in history's greatest bombing raids was given news correspondents today by Reichenberg Acellier, who has made eighteen raids over London, the last of them on Wednesday night.

"Our raiding forces," Acellier said, "are based on the best seasoned old war-horses, each of whom has fifty or sixty action flights in various war zones to his credit."

"They are the kind who have been champing at the bit for a crack at England after the humdrum life of raiding shipping, sowing air mines and reconnoitering."

SPEAKER BANKHEAD GOES TO HOSPITAL FOR REST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—Speaker Bankhead, who collapsed shortly before he was to have addressed a political rally in Baltimore Tuesday night, was in Naval Hospital in Washington today for "rest and quiet."

The 66-year-old Bankhead, who was confined to his hotel room in Baltimore since his collapse, which was brought on by a sciatica attack, drove to the capital with Mrs. Bankhead.

"He is just exhausted," said Mrs. Bankhead, "and he needs rest and quiet."

Royal Chapel Wrecked, Watermain Destroyed. Pavement Torn Up Inside Quadrangle And Outside Gates; Asphalt Catches Fire

OFFICIALS EXPRESS THEIR ANGER

Downing Street Damaged, Too; Many Civilians Killed And Injured In Major Offensive; Presence Of Princesses Undisclosed

LONDON, Sept. 13—King George and Queen Elizabeth, symbols of majesty in an empire fighting for its life, escaped injury today in what was described as a deliberate bombing attack by German war planes on Buckingham Palace and other "conspicuous buildings" of London.

Five bombs which dropped on the palace or its grounds during a terrific four hour and ten minute raid wrecked the famous royal chapel, smashed scores of windows, shattered a watermain and tore up pavement inside the quadrangle and outside the palace gates.

It was to this chapel that Their Majesties had retired to pray for victory almost every day since the war began.

An official communique issued by the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security said:

"Following last night's ineffective attacks in which bombs were dropped on London at random through heavy clouds, a small number of enemy aircraft have today bombed a number of conspicuous buildings irrespective of their nature.

"It is feared the enemy has succeeded in killing and injuring a number of civilians.

"Buckingham Palace was attacked, several bombs falling within its precincts, one of which damaged the palace chapel.

"Their Majesties were resident, but fortunately escaped injuries. Three members of the staff of the palace were injured.

"Incendiary bombs also fell in Downing Street, but there was no damage."

The war cabinet headed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill made public this telegram to the king and queen: "Hearty congratulations to The Majesties on their providential escape in a barbarous attack made on their home and the royal persons."

In reply to Churchill, King George sent this message:

"The Queen and I are so grateful to the war cabinet for their kind message.

"Like so many other people, we now had personal experience of German barbarity, which only strengthens the resolution of all of us to fight through to a final victory."

Early fears of heavy casualties in an attack on a London school were removed when investigation showed the building was almost empty at the time.

Downing Street, where the residence of Prime Minister Winston Churchill is located, also was attacked.

Incendiary bombs fell in the famous old street, some landing near the doorway of Number 10, but no damage was caused.

An official statement disclosed that a number civilians were killed and injured in the furious attack.

A brief official announcement failed to indicate whether the bombing was accidental or represented a deliberate attempt to snuff out the lives of Britain's monarchs.

But investigation showed the damage was heavy—far exceeding that caused on Tuesday when a delayed action bomb went off just beyond the north wall of the palace, shattering scores of windows and cracking the swimming pool where Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose bathed each morning.

Five bombs hit the palace and its spacious grounds today.

Two fell in the inner quadrangle, apparently doing small damage.

A third crashed into the famous

GERMANY SILENT ON BOMB ATTACK AT BUCKINGHAM

BERLIN, Sept. 13—German official quarters were silent today on the bombing of Buckingham Palace, home of Britain's King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

However, they did point out that Royal Air Force raiders had not spared any of Berlin's edifices in recent attacks on the Reich capital.

It was announced that a new rain of bombs was dropped on London during the afternoon when Nazi planes broke through heavy British coastal defenses.

GASOLINE-FILLED FIRE EXTINGUISHERS FOUND IN DESTROYER FACTORY

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 13—State police today disclosed that 80 fire extinguishers, each filled with gasoline, had been found at the Bath Iron Works Corporation, builders of destroyers for the U. S. navy.

Two minor fires have occurred recently at the plant which is now filling naval and commercial contracts totalling $100,000,000.

Lieut. Leon Shepard of the Maine state police said that 80 alien employees had been questioned. Special precautions are now being taken to guard the plant.

F. B. I. STUDIES POWDER BLAST IN NEW JERSEY

Thirty Known Dead, Twenty Others Missing After Terrific Explosion

BUND ACTIVITIES EYED

Many Buildings Collapse, Windows Shattered Miles Away

KENVIL, N. J., Sept. 13.—Thirty persons were known to be dead, at least twenty more were missing today, and about 200 were injured as a result of a series of explosions, which yesterday afternoon wrecked the plant of the Hercules Powder Company. Property damage exceeded $1,000,000 and may run to $3,000,000.

It was one of the worst munitions disasters in the history of the nation. And because the company, second largest producer of smokeless powder in the country, was working almost entirely on orders for the United States Army, the Federal Bureau of Investigation was making an inquiry to determine the cause of the disaster.

Suspicion of sabotage arose immediately after the blasts leveled buildings on the 2,000-acre plant. At least twenty-five buildings collapsed in ruins or were gutted by flames. The detonations rocked the countryside and were heard 100 miles away.

Employees Checked

Dies committee agents and F. B. I. men were at the scene this morning, checking the records of all the company's employees for subversive connections. Investigators were seeking to determine whether any employees had been members or had attended meetings of the German-American Bund at Camp Norland at Andover, N. J., only 15 miles away.

Meanwhile, in Washington, demands arose on Capitol Hill for a congressional inquiry. The death toll far exceeded the famous Black Tom explosion in New Jersey in 1916 when only two persons perished.

The explosions were as frightful as any of the bombings in Europe's war zones. The blasts were preceded by a fire in the solvent recovery building, in a tank containing 16,000 pounds of smokeless powder, which was being processed. The explosions spread the flames to adjoining structures, more than a score of which were destroyed over a half-mile square area.

About seventy-five men were working in the solvent building at the time of the first blast. Eye-witnesses said the survivors staggered from the structure so dazed they did not know what had happened.

New Fires Break Out

New fires started every now and then as tanks of alcohol ignited. Throughout the night fire apparatus from miles around fought the flames which lit up the sky.

The plant employs about 1,500 men, a peace-time peak due to the fact the company was engaged in filling $2,800,000 in United States Army orders. Four hundred of these men were in the grounds when the first of the blasts blew dozens of them skyward.

Hospitals in neighboring towns were quickly filled with dead and dying men. Because of the confusions that prevailed it required a considerable time to make identifications. Police were busy for hours re-routing traffic and keeping the curious away from the scene because of the danger from threatened new explosions.

Searchers were still digging in the ruins this morning for the twenty or more missing men. The fires continued to smoulder and flare up and they were having difficulty as a result.

Under motorcycle escort, William C. Hunt, director of operations, came to the scene from the company's main headquarters at Wilmington, Delaware. He was accompanied by Colonel Henry Marsh, the company's smokeless powder expert. They made an inspection of the premises.

Sabotage Discounted

Hunt, after talking to survivors and making a general investigation, said it was impossible to learn how the fire started, but that no immediate evidence of sabotage had been found.

Hunt told reporters the company had been hiring new men recently because of government orders, and had made its own investigation of applicants without asking government agencies to cooperate.

It was reported that the company had received a list of 2,000 men identified as having attended meetings of the German-American Bund at nearby Camp Norland.

"We do not suspect any one," said Hunt. "It was an explosion that cannot be accounted for at this time."

Other officials declared it was impossible to determine whether sabotage was responsible until a thorough investigation is made by experts. Denying reports it had been easy to gain access to the plant, they said the company had an elaborate guard and pass system.

The FBI, the Army and the Navy all sent investigators to the scene. So did the state police and the prosecutor's office of Morris County.

Kenvil, scene of the disaster, is located about forty miles from New York City on the main highway from New York through New Jersey to Stroudsburg, Pa. It is six miles from Dover, the nearest city, where windows in homes and stores were smashed.

Throughout the small community of Kenvil, havoc was wrought by the blasts. Telephone wires were torn loose, windows broken, furniture smashed and power service disrupted.

People 100 miles and more away heard the explosions. Some of them thought there had been an earthquake. The blasts were felt across the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and they were recorded on the seismograph at Fordham University in New York City.

Within a short time after the succession of blasts, fire apparatus and ambulances were rushed to the scene. Scores of doctors and nurses came in ambulances and private automobiles.

STEVE BELLOISE BOOSTS SELF INTO TITLE CHANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—By taking a one-sided 10-round decision from Ceferino Garcia in Madison Square Garden last night, Steve Belloise today had virtually clinched himself a match for the middleweight crown of Ken Overlin on November 1.

Carrying the action to Garcia who landed few substantial blows, Belloise took a good seven of the 10 rounds. Belloise weighed 155½; Garcia 157½.

Garcia complained of feeling ill and unable to go on but the commissioners ordered him into the ring after a physical examination.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13.—Ohio's annual High School pigskin parade officially gets under way tonight.

Leading the scholastic pack into battle is Massillon's defending state champion eleven which battles Cathedral Latin of Cleveland under the lights at the Stark County city. Equally as important among the lid-lifters is the match between New Philadelphia's touted Quakers and Akron Garfield in the Tuscarawas County stadiums.

Other important games find Akron Kenmore at Dover; Akron North at Lorain; Akron West at Mansfield; Cleveland at Canton McKinley; St. Clairsville at Martins Ferry and scores of others—important to the usual partisan followers.

BUCKS CONTINUE DRILLS; SCRIMMAGES ARE ORDERED

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13.—Not much was to be concluded today as a result of the first scrimmage held among Ohio State University's 1940 football edition.

With Frank Clair on the sidelines with a groin injury, Coach Francis Schmidt sent St. Clairsville's Johnny Newlin to the right-end spot on the "varsity" squad. The "A" combination squared off against Schmidt's third stringers while the No. 2 squad played the No. 4 aggregation.

Other than the fact that blocking and tackling was ragged—as could be expected after only three days of practice—nothing worthy of note transpired.

THE HEROES AND THE GOATS

HEROES—Hugh Casey, Dodgers, who was credited with both pitching victories as Brooklyn defeated Pittsburgh in a double-header; Ken Silvestri, White Sox, whose pinch-hit homer in the ninth inning gave Chicago a win over Philadelphia.

GOATS—Joe Gordon, Yankees, whose error paved the way for his team's downfall at the hands of Detroit; Mort Cooper, Cardinals, who blew up in the eighth inning of the second game against Boston.

Guy Tucker, Zanesville, Taken To Hospital Suffering From Fractures

When he stepped through the cellar door instead of a door that leads in to a closet, Guy Tucker, 55, of Zanesville, was painfully injured Thursday evening in an accident at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Magill, Seyfert Avenue. Mr. Tucker fell to the bottom of the cellar steps.

He had started to enter a closet that goes off the kitchen at the Magill home. Beside the closet is the cellar door. Not being acquainted with the home, Mr. Tucker opened the cellar door and took his first step without looking where he was going.

Taken to Berger Hospital, it was discovered that he had a compound fracture of the shoulder and of the left arm.

Thirteen muscles of the face are used in smiling; 50 to make a frown.

EIGHT CHURCHES HIT BY MISSILES IN NAZI RAIDS

Historic Structures Suffer
Heavy Damage During Attack Series

FAMED ST. GILES STRUCK

Continuous Bombings Cause
Many Prominent Places
To Be Leveled

LONDON, Sept. 13 — Eight of London's famous historic churches have been damaged in German air raids in the last several days along with Somerset House, fashionable Berkeley Square, the world-renowned Regent Street shopping center, and Rotten Row in Hyde Park, the Ministry of Information announced today.

The churches, all located in the very heart of London, include the famous St. Giles, burial site of John Milton, and St. Magnus the Martyr on Lower Thames Street near the London bridge.

The other churches affected by the raids were St. Swithin's on Cannon Street, St. Mary's at Hill, St. Dunstan's in East, St. Mary Woolnoth's, St. Clements in Eastcheap, and St. Augustine's.

The Ministry of Information, although allowing disclosure that the famous structures had been damaged, did not reveal the extent of the damage.

Somerset House is a beautiful quadrangular building in the Palladian style and houses government offices. One wing of Somerset House is King's College, part of the University of London. Directly across the street is Bush House, the largest office building in London. The famous Waterloo Bridge, straddling the Thames, is within 10 yards of the damaged structure.

Shopping Center Hit
Damage in the ultra smart shopping center of Regent Street was caused by a delayed action bomb which blew a gigantic crater in the street, shattering glass for hundreds of yards around. The bomb landed within a block of Piccadilly Circus. Hardest hit were the showrooms of the Ford Motor Company and the Piccadilly Hotel.

This same bomb-wrecked the pre-war Italian Tourist Agency building and pock-marked many famous shops.

Berkeley Square, the aristocratic residential quarter made famous in Thackeray's writings, still contains many of its original homes built in the 1700's.

St. Magnus the Martyr, designed by Christopher Wren, topped with an 185-foot steeple and rebuilt 264 years ago, is one of London's oldest churches. It stands near the huge Billingsgate fish market, St. Mary at Hill built in 1672, is nearby.

Immersed in the south wall of the ancient St. Swithin's is the London Stone, generally believed to have been the millarium of Roman London from which distances on Roman highways were measured. It stands near the Cannon Street railway station.

St. Dunstan in the East, rebuilt in 1671 by Wren, is on Lower Thames Street near the custom house, and St. Mary Woolnoth, built in 1716, is on Lombard Street off famous King William Street. St. Clements, in the same area, and near the bank of England is 254 years old.

St. Augustine's is within two blocks of St. Paul's cathedral—in whose yard and unexploded bomb reposes.

St. Giles Cripplegate, on Fore Street, is famous at Milton's burial place and the scene of Oliver Cromwell's marriage.

CHESTERFIELD LAUNCHES NEW ADVERTISING SERIES

Many famous personalities appear in the Chesterfield Cigarettes campaign for early fall, released this week by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

This campaign will tell America that Chesterfield is "the smoker's cigarette, because it combines milder, cooler, better taste in one satisfying smoke."

From the screen world, Fred MacMurray, Robert Rapelye and Gertrude McKee "star" for Chesterfield. Heading the list of sports celebrities are Gene Sarazen, golf champion, and Sid Luckman, All-America football hero.

Three pretty aviatrixes from the newly organized Women Flyers of America and a cheerful World Series baseball advertisement complete the schedule.

National magazines, billboards, cut-outs and the famous Chesterfield radio network programs, featuring Glenn Miller's Moonlight Serenade on CBS and Fred Waring's Pleasure Time on NBC, support the newspaper advertising.

Five Daily Newspapers In Paris; 35 Before War

PARIS (via BERLIN), Sept. 12 —The future of the Paris press is a problem which may be left until peace, but it is a safe bet that Parisians will never see many of their favorite papers again.

Before the war the Parisian public revelled in some thirty-five daily newspapers devoted to politics and "information", not to speak of nearly a score of daily sports, financial and other sheets.

All of these migrated under orders in the great flight of government and people just before the Germans arrived, although Paris editions of "Le Matin", "La Victoire" and "Paris-Soir" appeared in a few days, the first two apparently under the old management and editors, the last, temporarily, with a makeshift staff.

"La Victoire" disappeared in a few days due to its title, general policies and an editorial insisting that France should stand by Britain to the bitter end, which was prepared but never printed, about the time the government was signing the armistice.

Newspapers Dwindled Sharply
Today, Parisians have three morning and two afternoon, one-page papers and perhaps a half a dozen, two to four page weeklies, or bi-weeklies.

The "emigre" and provincial press of non-occupied France, reaches the occupied area and Paris only occasionally and accidentally, although the leading provincial papers in the occupied area continue to circulate as freely as communications permit.

Nevertheless, communications between the two parts are sufficient to permit it to be known here that the press in non-occupied France is encountering much greater difficulties than the Paris press, due to continuation of severe wartime censorship, shortage of paper and innumerable other problems.

No doubt, when the French government returns some Paris papers will also come home, but a number will certainly be found among the "missing". Among "casualties" known to date are: "Le Populaire" (Leon Blum's Socialist organ) "Epoque" (organ of Henri de Kerillis, who with Genevieve Tabouis and other journalists fled to the United States), "Aube" and "L'Ordre" which Emile Bure edited and "Pertinax" wrote for. The Communist sheets "Humanite" and "Ce Soir" of course were suppressed by the French at the beginning of the war.

Policies Are Pro-German
The Paris papers appear to have broad liberty in internal politics but it happens that their policies tend to agree with the German

What! --- And Only 13 Minutes Late?

By Austin Showman

Okeh Boss, you asked me to write a Friday the Thirteenth story. I'll try, but personally I'm not the least bit superstitious, so naturally I think the whole idea is a lot of bunk, and besides, I'm not in such good humor today. I got up too early this morning. Set the alarm a little early so I wouldn't be late for work, and when the darn thing went off, it scared me so I jumped out on the wrong side of the bed. Of course I'm not superstitious, so that didn't make any difference, but I've always been accustomed to getting out on the other side and figured there was no use breaking the rule this morning. So I crawled back in and then out on the usual side—after a brief pause of fifteen or twenty minutes in the middle.

We have only one mirror in our bath room, that is we had only one. We haven't any now. I put it on a chair to shave this morning, not that I was afraid of knocking it off its shakely old shelf, but I figured there was no use taking any chances. It was too high where it was anyway. I did kick over the chair and break the mirror on the way out of the bathroom, but that's beside the point.

Spent my lucky pocket-piece for a cup of coffee this morning. Was in such a hurry leaving the house I forgot my pocketbook, but that doesn't make any difference. Never liked the thing anyway and just carried it for the last ten years thinking I might need it some time.

On my way to the office, I took a short cut through the alley to save time. Saw a black cat, but black cats don't worry me, because I'm not the least bit superstitious. Still, it was pretty rude of him to walk right across in front of me without begging my pardon, so I picked up a rock and threw it at him, but he must have moved, because I didn't hit him—I hit a basement window across the alley. There was no use making anyone get out of bed and stand there in the cold and argue with me about a broken window so I thought I'd run away and not cause them any trouble. But when I began to run, I tripped over that cat and lost my rabbit's foot. Never did find it, although I looked for a long time.

That's the reason I was 13 minutes late for work this morning, Boss.

FOES CONTINUE TO HURL BLASTS AT DRAFT BILL

F. D. To Sign Act As Soon As It Is Passed To Speed Actual Operation

the regular army, provided in the bill.

Under the conscription bill the base pay for enlisted men in both the regular army and National Guard is increased from $21 to $30 a month beginning October 1.

Rep. Short (R) Mo., leader of the house fight against the conscription bill, said that he would support the conference report.

"I'd like to see the report approved without a roll call," he said. "I was against the conscription bill and lost. We are not dealing with an ordinary piece of legislation. I would like for any potential enemy to know that a democracy, after having gone through the processes of conflict on legislation, can still be united. I want to do the patriotic thing. Although I opposed the bill, I will vote for the conference report."

Sen. Sheppard (D) Tex., chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, praised the final form of the conscription bill and voiced the hope for speedy congressional approval.

To Speed Machinery
President Roosevelt may sign the bill either tomorrow or Monday, if congress completes action today. He is expected to set draft machinery in motion at once.

Lieut. Col. Lewis Hershey is believed slated for the post of draft director.

Hershey estimated that 6,500 local draft boards will be set up under the bill for registration of citizens, and of aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens.

The war department then, he indicated, will select draftees by age classes. The army's present plan is to confine the draft to men between 21 and 30. The first draft, it was indicated, may be limited to those between 21 and 25.

Because of the approach of winter, it is expected that the first actual induction will be limited to 75,000 to 100,000 men. They are expected to be called between November 7 and 20, war department officials said.

Senate-house committees which agreed on the final 21 through 35 age limit said this was done to conform to the volunteer enlistment age. House conferees urged a 45-year age limit so that world war veterans could be brought into the service and their experience utilized in training draftees.

BIG BOMB IN FRONT OF CATHEDRAL MAY BE DUD
LONDON, Sept. 13—Twenty-four hours after it crashed in front of St. Paul's Cathedral in the heart of London, a German aerial bomb remained unexploded today leading to belief that the missile is a dud and not a delayed-action explosive.

Military authorities, who have cordoned off the streets in the surrounding area and ordered business establishments closed in the vicinity, have inspected the bomb, and are expected to make an announcement shortly.

It is feared that if the bomb should prove genuine, and explode, it would seriously damage the famous cathedral which has been standing in London since 1710.

ATTACK ON KING WAY TO ANGER BRITISH PEOPLE

family after household expenses had been taken care of.

But he is England—throne, crown, sceptre, history, prestige, tradition and intellect all rolled into one. He is the flag, the emblem of majesty, the symbol of empire unity.

The King of England is not merely tolerated. He is loved and respected. But he is not deified. It is difficult to put into words just how the stands. Perhaps it can best be put this way: every Englishman, barring a few ultraradicals who have now almost disappeared from the scene, feels that he must have his king.

The right of criticism and even ridicule is carefully maintained. No Englishman ever made a secret of the fact that George VI stutters, that Edward VIII liked a good time, that George V was a martinet in his own household, that Edward VII enjoyed a bathing Lily Langty in champagne.

But woe betide the foreigner who lifts his voice in criticism or ridicule of the monarch! That is distinctly a British prerogative. The King belongs to his people. They may laugh at his foibles (if he has them) but they raise their hats when he passes by.

Games of our favorite football team will be broadcast. But how? Fumble by fumble?

KING AND QUEEN ESCAPE INJURY AS BOMBS FALL

private chapel, sanctuary of Britain's monarchs since Queen Victoria established Buckingham Palace as the royal residence a century ago.

Recalled By Americans
The other two fell in the roadway between the Victoria memorial and the palace gates—the smooth pavement where countless thousands of American tourists have stood for decades past to watch the changing of the guard in the courtyard.

The royal chapel, which is close to the ambassadors' entrance of the palace, was demolished, its ancient wood-carving smashed to splinters, its altar wrecked, statues pulverised and baptismal font reduced to rubble.

The king and queen had taken shelter deep in the subterranean recesses when the air raid sirens sounded. The entire palace personnel with the sole exception of "danger watchers" who never leave their posts, had taken to places of safety as well.

The royal apartments, which are in the north wing of the palace, were unscathed. The chapel is in the south wing.

Two large craters were dug in the quadrangle where a water-main burst and sent a cascade of water spouting into the air.

Many windows along the south side of the palace were shattered. Walls were pitted with bomb fragments.

Staff Members Hurt
Three members of the palace staff, however, sustained slight injuries. They were treated by air raid precautions workers assigned to the mammoth building since the beginning of the war to be on hand for just such an emergency.

The two bombs which fell outside the palace and adjacent to the Victoria memorial which stands at the head of tree-shaded Pall Mall, set fire to the asphalt pavement.

Soldiers in the Wellington barracks along birdcage walk next to the palace dashed across the roadway with spades and fire-fighting equipment. The blaze was speedily extinguished.

For the historical records, this was the first time a British sovereign had been endangered inside Buckingham Palace. The great pile, built by the Duke of Buckinghamshire in 1703 and purchased by George III in 1762, has never been the scene of an assassination attempt. It has always been sanctuary.

There have been incidents on Constitution Hill just outside the palace, but violent death never stalked its broad corridors. The Duke of Windsor, when King Edward VIII, was once menaced by a madman with a gun while reviewing troops on Constitution Hill, but the weapon was merely thrown at his feet and not fired.

The bombing was witnessed from its beginning by a London reporter who had just left the palace grounds after inspecting the damage done by Tuesday's time bomb.

"I heard the roar of the plane's engines as it dived out of the clouds just overhead," he said. "It was a twin-engine light bomber."

"As the pilot came over the center of the palace he seemed to cut his engines. The machine lost speed."

"Then came the whistle of falling bombs and the terrific blast of explosions. The concussion threw me to the ground."

This reporter agreed with most observers that the attack was deliberate. In addition to the five bombs which caused real damage, numerous incendiary missiles fell close by but police and A.R.P. workers quickly extinguished the fires.

From the large number of explosive and incendiary bombs dropped, opinion was general that the pilot had carried out the attack deliberately, either on orders from Berlin, or on his own inspiration to earn a place in history.

Sources close to the palace said that neither the king nor queen showed any undue alarm and their bearing throughout the ordeal was what might have been expected.

Throughout the attack, they remained in their safe shelter, calm and dignified as always, and when the all clear came they walked through the cellars of the palace and back to their apartments, exchanging felicitations with servants and retainers on the miraculous escapes.

It was not established immediately whether the princesses were in the palace at the time.

The raid which endangered the monarchs was the seventieth of the war. While it was on, a veritable shower of incendiary bombs fell on the central London area, raining down on roadways and buildings. All fires were promptly tackled by fire personnel and A.R.P. workers. Sandbags protecting roofs and facades of buildings were torn apart to reach the blazes.

BERLIN, Sept. 13—British bombers which sought to penetrate north and west Germany during the night were driven back before they reached their objectives, a high command communique, which claimed widespread successes for German raiders over England, reported today.

The communique, which also reported the torpedoing of six British merchant ships, as well as the repelling of a British naval attack on Boulogne, said: "One submarine sunk six armed enemy merchantships, totalling 37,600 gross registered tons, including a 7,000-ton steamer which already previously had been reported as sunk."

"British airplanes flying during the night into north and west Germany failed to succeed in reaching their goals. The few bombs which they dropped on dwelling quarters and villages caused only slight damage."

"During the course of our own armed reconnaissance we dropped bombs on industrial works in London, Bexhill, Brighton, Banbury and other places. Southwest of the isles of Man we succeeded in heavily damaging a merchantship of 8,000 gross registered tons."

"Last night bombers again dropped bombs on port and dock facilities of London and Liverpool causing new conflagrations and explosions."

"Mines were again laid in British harbors. "An enemy airplane was shot down, and one of our airplanes is missing."

"During the night light enemy naval forces tried to bombard the Boulogne Harbor. Without having caused any damage, the enemy was driven off by the fire of our coastal batteries."

JOSEPH LEACH TO SERVE TIME ON FORGERY COUNT
Joseph Leach, of Circleville, indicted by the grand jury on charges of forgery, was sentenced to one to twenty years in Mansfield Reformatory Thursday when he appeared before Judge Meeker Terwilliger. Leach was arrested for cashing a $12 forged check with a local filling station attendant.

REICH CHARGES FACTS HIDDEN

out the empire's nerve center along the Thames, every man jumped to his place.

"Each man was naturally eager to witness practical application of his weapons and heavy bombs. "It is an appalling matter from a human personal standpoint when one considers his own home and family, but for us in the air it is a matter of war. And war is hell."

"We can only approach our targets with everyone intent on hitting the object and getting the best, possible results, without consideration for the unfortunates who happen to get caught below."

"Naturally anyone seeing a holocaust like that in London today will never forget the appalling sight, in spite of war's natural cruelty."

"I cannot imagine, for example, that normal life in London is still possible. I can only venture to guess from my observations the chaotic effect of a devastation so vast that the British government does not dare to reveal it, for fear of betraying Britain's crumbling military might."

During recent raids, the pilot said, anti-aircraft defenses on both sides of the Thames were silent while searchlights were out "indicating dead sections there which are spreading rapidly."

ONE PARALYSIS FATALITY, MORE OHIO CASES LISTED

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13—Seven new cases of infantile paralysis, including one fatality, were reported to Health Director R. H. Markwith today, bringing to 244 the number of cases reported so far this year. Nineteen deaths have been recorded to date, and 76 active cases remain scattered throughout 33 counties.

Two new cases were reported from Williams County, the first outbreaks of the disease there. Madison and Fayette counties also had their first outbreaks, while the other three cases were reported from Franklin, Cuyahoga and Columbiana counties.

Dr. Markwith said he would leave for Washington Sunday to attend a conference of all state and territorial health officers called by Surgeon-General Thomas Parran of the U. S. Public Health Service. The conferees will discuss problems presented by refugee children, the national defense program and its relation to public health, and the possibility of a unified national public health program, Dr. Markwith said.

BID HIGH, BUT NOT LOW
PARADOXICAL as it seems, there are hands which are so weak you cannot bid them at a low level, but can at a higher one. They are those with a sound fit for your partner's suit, but utter lack in defensive values. When the bidding goes along, with the opponents showing plenty of strength, you hope they will drop it below game, and so keep passing. But if they get to their game and your partner passes without doubling, you can then afford to sacrifice. The point is that there is at least enough at stake to pay you for taking a penalty, whereas previously there was not.

West can make 4-Hearts. They can even make an overtrick, with the loss of only one trick in diamonds and one in clubs. A second club loser can be prevented by discarding one on a ruffed-up spade.

When West's bid of 3-Hearts came along, North quite properly passed it. His hand was only of sacrifice caliber, and there was no point to getting doubled and set a couple of tricks for a loss of 300 points when the opponents were bidding for only a part score.

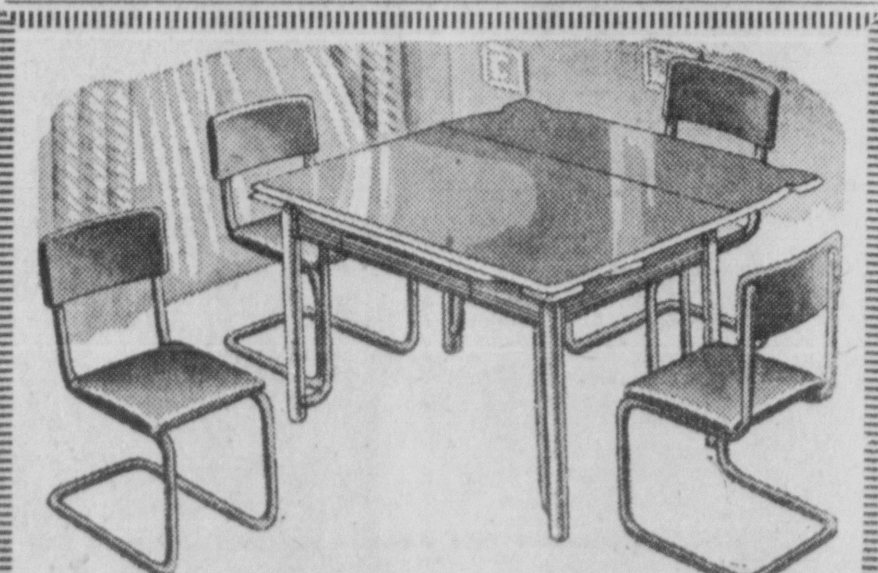

The situation was utterly different, though, after East went to 4-Hearts and South passed it. Now North knew a game was at stake, a vulnerable game worth, all told, some 600 points to East and West. He reckoned, from his partner's bidding up to three without assistance, that the set would be only of about three tricks which is exactly the result. So East and West, by taking two tricks in spades, two in hearts and one in clubs, got 500 points, less than the value of their game.

WILLKIE FLAYS POLITICAL FOES AS BUCCANEERS

G. O. P. Nominee Moves Into Chicago After Attack On Kelly, Nash

LaGUARDIA, OTHERS HIT Municipal Corruption Laid To Many Of Roosevelt Supporters

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 — With a blast at "political buccaneers" and "the most corrupt political machines the nation has ever known," Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate for president, headed into Chicago today with a schedule of four speeches where the Kelly-Nash machine which he is particularly fond of attacking, is strongest.

Leaving Rushville, Indiana, where his personal political headquarters have been, Willkie told a rear platform audience:

"I face a rare combination on the other side—a combination of high ideals combined with the worst gang of political buccaneers the country ever has seen but there are millions of Americans no political machine can corrupt and no federal government can buy."

Willkie tempted both fate and his political opponents in selecting the date of Friday the 13th and the province of the Kelly-Nash machine for the opening of the campaign.

Even before he entered Chicago, the Republican presidential candidate let it be known that he would not be surprised if there was an attempt to pack his four rallies today with supporters of Mayor Ed Kelly and Pat Nash, former national Democratic committee man.

Yet one of Willkie's last acts before leaving Rushville was to take another shot at Kelly, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., National Democratic chairman Edward J. Flynn and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York.

LaGuardia Assailed Willkie's criticism of these men came after he had listened with evident amusement to the radio speech of LaGuardia announcing himself as a supporter of President Roosevelt's third-term drive.

"Fiorello, that paragon of civic virtue; Jimmie Walker, whom he has just appointed to a $20,000 job; Ed Flynn, Frank Hague, that great lover of civic liberty, and Ed Kelly, boss of the Chicago sewer gang, have now joined hands in a righteous cause for the benefit of the people."

"I observe that Mayor LaGuardia did not deny his previously expressed estimation of Ed Flynn, which he expressed in the following words on October 3, 1933:

"Municipal corruption is like all other sordid crimes, strangely unoriginal. There is little originality in the official misconduct of our city government. I see very little difference in the twined of New York and that of John F. Curry of Manhattan or Ed Flynn of the Bronx."

"Mr. LaGuardia had even stronger denunciation of Jimmie Walker whom he has appointed to a $20,000 job. Thus the forces of righteousness march on."

The Ever-Present God

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 15 is Psalm 139, the Golden Text being John 14:23, "If a man love Me, he will keep my words; and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him.")

THIS IS our last lesson on the psalms for some time, and this 139th psalm is a beautiful one with which to close this series of lessons. We do not know when this psalm was written, only, from its title we know it to be in the time of David; and nothing in the psalm indicates at what place it was written.

It is written in a devout mood, when the psalmist realized how omniscient—all present—is God; that the creator of man must know everything about him, his bodily makeup, his nature, his soul and spirit.

"Thou knowest my down-sittings and mine uprisings; Thou understandest my thought afar off."

Have you ever tried to read another person's thoughts? All of us have at some time when we were very anxious to get the other's reactions to something. Sometimes we can do it very well, too, when the minds of both of us are occupied by the same trend of thought. But if the person whose thoughts we are trying to read does not want us to know what he is thinking, he can put on a "poker face," a mask of expressionlessness, and we cannot tell what his thoughts are.

We cannot do that with our Creator. He made us and He knows how our minds work because He created every bit of us. If our thoughts are not good, it is a startling thing to think that they are known—a strong incentive to keep our thoughts on higher things.

The psalmist's thought goes further, to the impossibility of escaping or hiding from the Maker. We can hide from our parents, from our playmates and friends. We can often hide from the government for a time, at least, if we have done enough wrong to warrant police search for us. But from the Maker of all we cannot hide. In most beautiful language the psalmist illustrates this thought:

Whither shall I go from Thy spirit?
Or whither shall I flee from Thy presence?
If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there:
If I make my bed in Sheol (hell), behold Thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning,
And dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;
Even there shall Thy hand lead me,
And Thy right hand shall hold me.
If I say: Surely the darkness shall overwhelm me,
And the light about me shall be night;
Even the darkness hideth not from Thee,
But the night shineth as the day:
The darkness and the light are both alike to Thee."

This should be a comforting thought, not a frightening one. God made us. He knows us—our weakness and strength—and He is with us always, in darkness and light, in joy and sorrow.

Suddenly the psalmist turns from this happy and peaceful thought to one, seemingly of anger and hatred, urging God to slay the wicked and asserting his hatred for the enemies of the Lord. Thinking of God as love, justice, truth, righteousness, it is easy to feel intense anger at the wickedness, hatred, falsehood, cruelty, injustice we see on every hand. We can be filled with love, sympathy and understanding toward all men, but feel still a burning hatred of all this wickedness. Even Jesus showed a righteous anger toward those who defamed God's house, and showed it by driving the cheating money changers from the temple.

The last two verses of the psalm are a prayer and an opening of the heart to Jehovah:

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts:
And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Our Golden Text is taken from John 14:23, where Jesus answers one Judas, not Judas Iscariot, saying: If a man love Me, he will keep My words; and My Father

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

COMMISSIONERS: I wish to commend your order of last week that sent a family of West Virginians back to their native haunts. Your step was taken, I am told, because the city from which they came only recently is in the center of an epidemic of infantile paralysis, one that has caused several deaths, and may cause many more. Health authorities in states afflicted by such diseases should take care of their own. They should not permit families to remove from their districts, since they might jeopardize the health of others. The persons you ordered to leave the county might not have the disease at all, but again they might have, and that is the reason you were acting. I feel that the health of Pickaway County is in excellent hands, and I am pleased that you have taken the action that you did. Outbreak of two cases of scarlet fever in Circleville means that parents and health authorities had better keep busy in an effort to prevent the spread of the disease. Parents should keep in close touch with their family physicians, and they should report the first symptoms of the ailment. Speed is imperative, and woe be to him who tries to cover up such a sickness.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ROTARY CLUB

MEN: Congratulations are extended to you for the splendid gesture made this week when you entertained the high school football squad of nearly 50 boys, their coaches and faculty manager, in a "Kick Off" Banquet prior to the first game. The dinner party was given at much expense to your members, but I feel certain that all of you received your money's worth by watching the youngsters enjoy themselves. Your club and the Kiwanis Club deserve much credit for the season ticket sale campaign to be brought to a close tonight. I do not know how successful the campaign has been, but I believe that more than 200 tickets have been sold. Not only will the ticket sale help the Athletic Association treasury, but your campaign has helped to arouse interest in the popular fall sports among Circleville folk. Both of your organizations have done well.

CIRCUITEER.

TO N. AND W. OFFICIALS

RAILROADERS: Circleville and Pickaway County folk were pleased the other day to learn that you are planning to spend more than three-quarters of a million dollars in the Scioto Division, which runs between Portsmouth and Columbus through Circleville. The money will be used to provide a complete new signal system, one that will speed up transportation and help to increase the efficiency of the line. This community is proud of the Norfolk and Western because it is one of the nation's most progressive roads; its operators are always trying to develop and improve its service for the betterment of every shipper and every city, town or hamlet along its right-of-way. The Norfolk and Western has been enjoying a good business in recent years, and it has not been afraid to spend money to obtain more business. I hope that ere long the rumors that have been running north and south along your lines will be realized when a third track is constructed between Circleville and Chillicothe where traffic is extremely heavy. A third track is needed to speed traffic, because many trains now are forced to stop at Dorney to await a chance to move along.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COACH ROY BLACK

DEAR SIR: Tonight the eyes of all Circleville will be on you and your high school football team when the lid is pried off the annual football season. All of us believe that Circleville will be represented by a fighting team, one that will not quit until the final gun has sounded; one that will give a good account of itself despite the strength of its opponent. I believe that your squad this year includes many boys who will one day be stars. The fact that only four of the starters tonight will be seniors means that many of the boys in the lineup will be gaining experience for the next year and other years to come. You have some excellent football players on the bench ready for service if and when they are needed. The team this year does not possess a single outstanding star, at this time, but from all indications the eleven will be well-knitted, one that will work for the benefit of all. Whether your team wins or loses all of us believe that a good show will be put on. I hope that all who go to the football field will remember that Columbus Rosary will be Circleville's guest and that everyone should treat the visitors as such. All of us hope that your football season will be a great success.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PETITION SIGNERS

MEN, WOMEN: About the easiest thing that can be done nowadays is to get a petition filled. It doesn't make any difference what the petition may be asking, it's just as easy to fill it with one objective as another. Citizens who pride themselves on having at least a little intelligence put their names on petitions without reading the title of the petition or what might be under the title. They do not realize that they might be signing their own death warrant; that is a possibility when they do not learn the motives back of the various papers put in circulation for names. In nearly all cities of Ohio residents are asking that their names be stricken from petitions asking that Communist or Socialist candidates' names be placed on the Ohio ballot. Why this condition should continue to exist, I cannot tell you, but it does. One advantage that will be gained from this fact is that many persons who sign any petition which might be placed in front of them will now be a little more careful. It would be a great thing if each person who signs a petition without reading every paragraph in it would find his name looking at him in a newspaper one fine day.

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . . .

—By— Charles F. Stewart

IF BRITAIN succeeds in winning India's support in its pending campaign against totalitarianism it unquestionably will be an immense help to John Bull, for the subject country not only is enormously rich in material resources; it likewise has a prodigious population, a great proportion of which consists of first-class fighters. It's geographically well situated, too, especially with a view to dealing with the Japanese, as they grow increasingly ambitious in southern Asia and maybe in Australia, where the Britons have paramount interests.

Hence London's offer of virtual independence to the Indians, on condition that they join the rest of the empire in its life-and-death struggle with both the Occidental and Oriental dictatorships.

Will the Indians accept, however? They want independence alright, but how will they feel about plunging into war on Britain's terms?

Washington officialdom isn't unconcerned in the matter. For one item, a lot of us Americans sympathize with the British and would like to see India line up with them. Moreover, we're suspicious of Japan and surmise that Indian hostility would be a decided worry to the Japanese.

UP TO MAHATMA GANDHI
From all Washington can discover, the Indians' answer to London's appeal is up to Mahatma Gandhi, his country's combined patron saint and political leader.

And Mr. Gandhi is a puzzle to all Occidentals.

He's pro-independence for India and, in his way, he's fiercely belligerent. But his idea of belligerence is "civil disobedience" or "passive resistance."

Now, (the kind of belligerence that Britain wants at present isn't the "passive" kind.

Well, in today's emergency, will Mr. Gandhi indorse something uglier?

HE'S AN "ADEPT"
Plenty of people assume that Mahatma is Mr. Gandhi's first name.

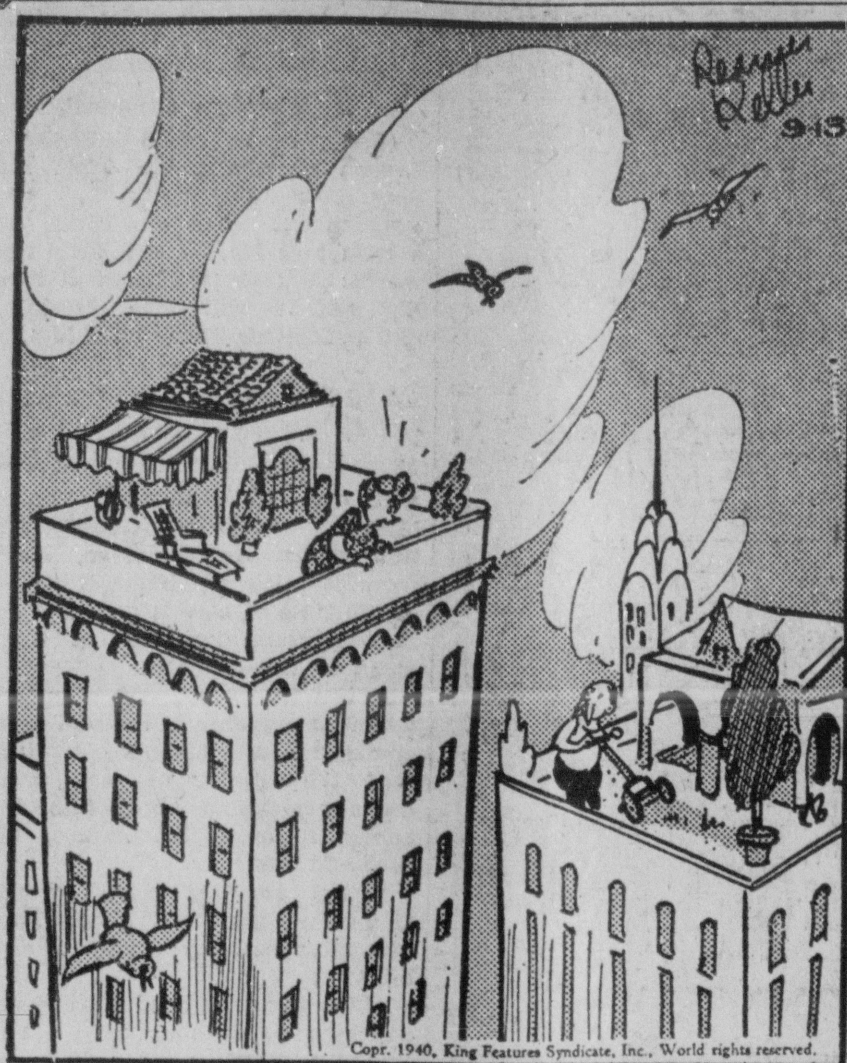

It's nothing of the sort. It's a designation somewhat comparable to "the Reverend" or "Doctor" of divinity. His real name is Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Mr. Gandhi is a Theosophist—Theosophy being a species of hybrid between a religion and philosophy. A student who has gone into it up to the limit is a "mahatma." That is to say, he's an "adept." He positively knows everything—and that's no exaggeration.

Mr. Gandhi is the top ranking mahatma of India.

Washington has done considerable probing of theosophy in the last few days, trying to forecast the mahatma's reply to London's proposition. It doesn't understand the subject very fully yet, however.

Deafness Can Develop In The Throat

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

From the viewpoint of function the organ of hearing consists of two parts:

First, the sound-conducting part. This consists of the external ear, the ear drum and middle ear, and part of the internal ear. Second, the sound-perceiving part which consists of the organ of Corti in the cochlear bone of the internal ear where the end fibers of the auditory nerve are spread out in a spiral shape so that each one, like the individual pipes of an organ, responds to a single note. Then the auditory nerve and the sound perceiving areas of the brain.

The auditory nerve and the auditory areas of the brain are almost never involved in a case of deafness.

Congenital Deafness

Congenital deafness involves almost always the organ of Corti. This may be due to the absence of the nerve fibers or maldevelopment so that there is no perception apparatus to call into play. Malformation of the bone in which the organ of Corti is placed will do the same thing. In children with absence of the thyroid gland—cretinism—the inner ear spaces are filled with a heavy (myxomatous) material.

Most cases of deafness in children are of the conduction type due to inflammation of the middle ear. The commonest cause of such inflammation is from infection in the throat, most often an infected adenoid that lies over the end of the Eustachian tube. The Eustachian tube goes from the throat to the middle ear.

Any of the infectious diseases of childhood may leave an infection in the middle ear as a residue or sequel—measles, scarlet fever, influenza and meningitis are particularly dangerous in this respect; whooping cough less so.

The canal of the external ear can be affected so as to cause deafness in childhood. Boils or plugs of wax are the commonest forms of such obstruction.

In the care and prevention of deafness in childhood much can be done. Every discharging ear should have careful and adequate treatment. During and after one of the infectious diseases, daily inspection of the ear drum should be made, and early incision instituted if pus forms.

Vitamin D

The deafness should also be assessed by means of functional tests. For school and educational purposes defective hearing should be recognized early, and special attention given to a child so handicapped—by having the child sit in the front seat in the class or provided with an electric hearing device. I emphasize this apparently obvious step because too often small degrees of deafness are not recognized in children, and the child's backwardness in class is laid to stupidity.

If the existent deafness appears to be progressive, every possible focus of infection should be eradicated and the cleaning out of all infected tags of adenoids instituted. Elimination and diet, especially the intake of Vitamin D, should be supervised.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

The cool weather that had centered over this vicinity during the last two weeks was no indication of an early frost, according to Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weatherman. In checking over his records, Dr. Clarke said that October 18 was the average date for killing frosts in the county.

A large and appreciative audience heard the piano recital at St. Philip's parish house when Miss Anna Schleyer, instructor, presented her pupil, Miss Elizabeth Reber, of Walnut Township. Miss Betty Scothorn, violinist, assisted.

The mythical jinx "Friday 13" bluffed Pickaway countians away from the marriage license book in probate court. Miss Alma Glick, clerk in probate court, said that no marriage licenses had been issued up to press time.

10 YEARS AGO

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Holman announced the engagement and coming marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Mr. Frank Casey, golf professional at the Pickaway Country Club.

Two Pickaway County homes were quarantined for infantile paralysis, one in Wayne, the other, Pickaway Township. Five cases of infantile paralysis in the city of Chillicothe and three cases in other parts of Ross County had been reported to health authorities.

A report sent out by Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles, showed 6,106 registered passenger cars in Circleville and the county. The report also disclosed that there were 961 trucks, 98 trailers, 17 passenger-commercial cars or busses, 24 motorcycles, three side cars and 23 dealers.

25 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap of Williamsport went to New York City where Mr. Dunlap looked after the shipment of a load of mule-footed hogs to Brazil.

Ninety-two tubercular patients were being cared for during August by Mrs. A. E. Runner, the visiting nurse of Chillicothe. Twenty-two patients were received during the month.

Miss Kathleen Dodd left for California with Ohio's group of pretty girls, being sent to the exhibitions by a Columbus newspaper.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

GUN AND Tommy went into the bedroom, got out of their flying suits, then into the bathroom and had a shower. In the sitting room Trent awaited them with a tray of cocktails.

"I'll just take a drink with you," he observed, "and then, if you don't mind, I'll leave you to it. I've a good deal to do, and I stand in need of a bath and a meal!"

He poured three cocktails from the shaker, and they each took one.

"Well, here's to success!" smiled Trent.

"I'll drink to that!" agreed Gun. "But I doubt if it'll mean quite the same thing to all of us!"

The dry Martini tasted good, and Tommy showed signs of reviving. Trent said:

"Well, good night, gentlemen! I shall hope to see you in the morning!"

He went out by the inner door, and a moment later Sambo, showing a double row of white teeth in a magnificent grin, hurried in with the soup.

"Thank you, Sambo!" said Gun, genially.

The black, who was looking at him, grinned and nodded. Gun thought that he could probably lip-read.

Neither he nor Tommy spoke until they had cleared the soup. Sambo remained in the back-ground. The moment they had finished, he whisked away the plates and hurried out. Tommy heaved a sigh, and looked at Gun.

"Well!" he remarked, with a rather dubious grin. "So far so good, eh?"

"S-s-sh!" Gun made a warning gesture, and then said, in a low voice: "Give nothing away—walls have microphones, and I don't trust all this courtesy!" Then, in a louder tone: "Well, Tommy, this is all very nice—but what the hell does it mean? What's it leading up to?"

"You're asking me!" retorted Tommy, playing up to him. "It looks to me as though we've been ruddy well kidnaped! I wish we could get in touch with headquarters."

"Oh, we'll see what we can do tomorrow!" Gun answered, with a yawn which was not entirely simulated. "It's wonderful how the needs of the moment obliterate themselves before all other things. Just now this meal, with a bath and a bed to come, leaves me not worrying about anything much!"

Sambo came in with fried sole and French fried potatoes, and again stood like a black statue by the door while they devoured it. Saddle of mutton followed, with cheese and biscuits to complete the meal.

Sam produced a small slate, with the legend: "Coffee, please?" written on it in a round, schoolboy hand.

Gun nodded, and taking the pencil, wrote "Black" on the slate. As Sambo turned to go, Gun followed him with his eyes. At the same time he rose, and deliberately knocked his chair over on the polished boards. He saw Sambo start, hesitate, and then go on, without turning his head.

"Deaf my foot!" commented Gun, in a low voice. "He can hear as well as an ox. I wonder if the dumbness is a fake, too?"

"Shouldn't wonder!" grunted Tommy, who, after his meal, was almost asleep. "I wonder where the hell we are?"

"So do I. Have you any idea at all?"

Tommy shook his head. "Very vague! That damned plane led us all over the shop to baffle me—not difficult, seeing I'd no compass! We're on an island, all right!"

Gun nodded.

"Yes—WHAT island?"

"Ask me another! It's pretty warm, though—and that rather suggests somewhere off the coast of Africa, doesn't it?"

"Maybe!" Gun shrugged. "Anyway, the sharp point is that they've got us!"

"Dammed cheek!" grunted Tommy. "But what are they going to do with us?"

"Give us pencil and paper, by the looks of that little drawing

office."

"Huh! They'll be damned unlucky. . . . Come on, what about that bath and bed?"

Twenty minutes later they were in their respective beds, and sleeping as only men who have been flying for nearly 24 hours at a stretch can.

In Whitehall, both War Office and Air Force staffs had returned. X was white and jaded.

"It's two hours since that last message came through," remarked War Office. "Whatever's happened, it's plain they won't get another chance to communicate tonight, I should say."

Air Force nodded, grimly.

"They've got them, all right," he said, unconsciously echoing Gun's remark made just about the same time. "I should think we might as well pack up—no good sitting here and looking at each other!"

X nodded, and rose wearily. He almost staggered as he walked across to the mantelpiece.

"Yes, you're right," he agreed. "An operator will be standing by all the time, of course, and I'll arrange to be called if anything important comes through. But, personally, I don't expect to hear anything for some time. Days, probably. If at all," he added, gloomily. He cursed the pessimism and depression that seemed to have gripped him—probably due to the long hours of strain, he imagined.

The other two gave good night, and went. X said his final directions and followed suit.

Outside the night was starry, and he stood on the pavement for a moment or two, staring up at the sky in silent contemplation.

The sea has hitherto held all the mysteries, he thought, but now that star-spangled waste is beginning to rival it! Lost flyers! An airplane in that waste is a very small and helpless thing, really.

And some of them never come back, and nothing is ever heard of them!

As though in answer to his thoughts he heard the distant roar of an engine, and presently could just make out the shape of a plane, faint against the stars.

X hailed a belated taxi.

Gun was awakened at an early hour by a beam of bright, warm sunshine on his face. It felt good, and he heaved a long sigh, yawned, and stretched luxuriously. But in the middle of it he remembered where he was, and the stretch collapsed rather ignominiously.

He sat up and looked around the room. Noticed again what he had already seen last night—that, while they were eating, their flying kits and the service revolvers had been quietly removed.

But Gun still had his inseparable companions—a small, flat pocket torch, and a .38 automatic. There was some comfort in that—especially in the latter.

He reached out for cigarette and lighter, and puffed luxuriously, trying to think of a safe place to hide his treasures in case they were "frisked." Decided that was hardly likely to happen so long as their captors did not realize that they were there by their own intent, and not owing to their captors' cunning. So far they seemed to have no suspicion of this.

Gun finished his cigarette, then got up and dressed—having no pajamas, he had slept naked.

Then he lit another cigarette, and went quietly into the sitting room. There was no one about, and he presumed that Sambo was still asleep in his "cave."

Gun opened the door, without noise, and stepped out into the sunlight. His watch registered seven-thirty, but the sun was already hot. The garden, which surrounded the bungalow, was well laid out, and was about a half-acre in extent. It was surrounded in its turn by the wire fence Gun had noticed the previous night. This was composed of stout, narrow-meshed wire netting, with barbed wire strung through it at intervals in such a way that it was obviously unclimbable, and was about 12 feet in height.

"They don't mean for us to get out of this bird cage, that's a certainty," was Gun's inward comment. This idea became confirmed when he observed that there was a guard at the gate, and two others each watching two sides of the square fence.

Gun became interested, and strolled down to the fence. The man patrolling that section was plainly not a regular soldier. He wore a suit of mechanic's overalls of khaki, and a wide-brimmed felt hat. Tennis shoes on his feet, and a cartridge belt loosely slung around his waist. The rifle he carried slung was a fairly up-to-date Mauser.

He turned his attention to the man patrolling the other section. He wore dungarees and a battered straw hat—otherwise his appearance was much the same as the other.

But the man at the gate was different. He was a big, blond man, in an open-necked shirt and trousers, with golf shoes on his feet.

Gun noticed also that the men patrolling had a slouching, careless walk, which could never be found in even the most carelessly trained soldier, while the man at the gate stood precisely as he had seen sentries standing outside official places in Berlin.

Gun walked as far as the fence and waited until the man in dungarees came along.

"Good morning," said Gun in English.

The man passed on without even looking at him.

Gun waited until he came back and, just as he drew level, held his gold cigarette case close to the netting.

"Cigarro?"

The man took not the slightest notice. Gun strolled after him, a little to the rear. He fell to whistling. He whistled a bar or two of the "Red Flag"—then the "Carmagnole." Then, breaking off, Gun substituted, on a slightly louder note, "Santa Lucia."

Gun, who had been watching the patrol's back very closely, was satisfied for the moment, and turned his attention to the landscape.

view, after a hundred yards, was obstructed by a high wooden fence. Beyond that could be seen the roofs of buildings, and from faint clinking and hammerings that came to him from that direction, Gun deduced workshop. This, as Gun saw from the sun, was the southern side of the bungalow.

On the western side was a wide, flat stretch of ground, rising slightly upward for about half a mile, with nothing but some tree tops to be seen beyond the top of the rise. This was where they had made their landing the previous night, though there was no sign of an airplane to be seen there now.

The whole of the northern side was occupied, within fifty yards of the fence, by a slope so steep as to be practically perpendicular, which rose some 70 feet almost sheer.

The face of it was rocky, with sparse, coarse grass growing, and stunted bushes growing here and there. Gun could not identify the bushes, and this fact gave him the idea of studying the flowers in the garden. But they were all English varieties—pansies, primulas, daffodils, lilies and so on. Evidently imported. Gun cursed softly, and turned his attention to the eastern side.

There was nothing to be seen here—only the backs of a row of hutments, similar to the British army huts used in the Great War. Smoke was coming from the tin chimney pots, and Gun guessed that the garrison, or whatever it called itself, of the place lived there, and were just attending to their breakfast.

On an afterthought he strolled down to the fence again, and took careful stock of the hands of all the sentries.

As he turned to the bungalow a clattering issued from the kitchen, and from the bathroom there came the sound of Tommy Hazeldene singing unmelodiously.

"I don't know what the hell you think you've got to sing about," grunted Gun from the doorway.

"Well, I got a nibble or two, anyway."

"Good lad! And as for singing, why not? We're alive, and the sun's shining. What more d'you want?"

TIGER CAPTAIN SCOFFS AT JINX, WEARS NO. 13

Bob Brown, designated Thursday evening by Coach Roy Black as acting captain for Friday's opening grid game, is defying the Friday the Thirteenth jinx by wearing a white jersey carrying the numeral "13".

Brownie, scrapping senior center, wore the jinx number through last season without suffering an injury worse than a kick in the groin and loss of wind, or a smash in the face when he used his nose to block a placekick.

Coach Black will appoint an acting captain for each game, the lettermen to pick an honorary season's captain at the close of play.

REDS WIN AGAIN TO SOAR NEARER LEAGUE HONORS

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—With 19 games left to play, the Cincinnati Reds today pushed on toward their second straight National League pennant. The Reds, as of this morning, had a 5½ game lead over second-place Brooklyn and needed only to win 10 more games to clinch a place in the 1940 World Series.

The Reds eliminated New York from any possibility of winning the flag by defeating the Giants, 9 to 4 yesterday. Gene Thompson pitched shutout ball for the first eight innings, although the Giants got four counters in the last frame.

It was Thompson's fifteenth victory of the season. He, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer have now accounted for 53 of the Reds' 87 victories.

Johnny "No Hit" Vander Meer, who won his first start since rejoining the Reds after a sojourn at Indianapolis in the American Association, was to hurl for the Redlegs today. Carl Hubbell was expected to take the mound for the Giants.

Landis Calls Five A. L. Moguls To Talk Series

By Ed Kiehl

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—If that mad American League pennant race has you baffled today, then pity Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, shaggy-haired czar of baseball.

Today's the day they draft plans for the World's Series and the judge is in such a quandary as to the outcome of the junior circuit jubilee that he has invited no fewer than five American League teams to send representatives. The teams that still have a chance in the judge's opinion are Detroit, Cleveland, New York, Boston and Chicago.

Whereas in the National League Landis apparently considers the race a pretty cut-and-dried affair. For he has invited envoys from only Cincinnati and Brooklyn. As a matter of fact, the high commissioner is more optimistic than even the most dyed-in-the-wool Dodger fan, who already is wailing "wait" 'til next year.

As the superstitious ball players loaded themselves with lucky charms on this, Friday, the thirteenth, the leading American League teams were still laced together tighter than a drum head. The Tigers added a point to their scant half-game lead by erasing the Yankees, 6 to 3, in the first game of their important series. Some effective hurling on the part of Schoolboy Rowe, who registered his 14th victory, and a costly error by Joe Gordon in the eighth inning when the Tigers tallied four times sent the Yankees skidding to two games behind first place.

Mel Harder straightened out the staggering Indians by pitching them to an 8 to 1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Harder allowed the hard-hitting Bostonians only three hits and kept the Tribe within half-game striking distance of the top tenants.

The Chicago White Sox pulled into a fourth place tie with the Red Sox when they nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics twice, 1 to 0 and 4 to 3. Pinch-Hitter Ken Silvestri was the hero in the nightcap, hitting a homer in the ninth to drive Mike Kreevich home ahead of him to break up the contest.

Manager Bucky Harris of the Senators shoved a rookie, Arnold Anderson, in against the St. Louis Browns and the kid came through with a six-hitter 7 to 2 victory.

Over in the National League, the New York Giants were eliminated from the pennant race when they dropped a 9 to 4 verdict to the leading Reds. The Giants, now 21 games back, have no possible chance of catching anything but a train back to their winter homes.

Dodgers Battling
Brooklyn's determined Dodgers refused to be counted out, however, and lashed the Pittsburgh Pirates in both ends of a double-header, 7 to 0 and 7 to 4. Hugh Casey gave an iron man performance and was credited with two pitching victories. After shutting out the visitors in the opener on three hits, the hulking Irishman returned to the mound with the score all tied in the seventh inning of the nightcap and went on to win game No. 2, with some timely assistance from his mates.

St. Louis lost an opportunity to overtake the third-place Pirates by dropping two contests to the Boston Bees, 7 to 7 and 6 to 1 and the Chicago Cubs took the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 1.

BLUES VIRTUALLY SEW UP TITLE WITH 14-0 TILT

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13—Kansas City virtually had another American Association pennant flag sewed up today as the Blues recorded a 14 to 0 shutout over St. Paul. The AA regular season ends Sunday.

Second-place Columbus remained three and one-half games behind the league leaders by recording a 4 to 3 win over Louisville at the Kentucky city and Minneapolis retained a mathematical chance for the pennant by dividing a double bill with Milwaukee. The Millers took the opener 11 to 1 but were

Six Of Boys Who Start In Rosary Game Were In 1939 Contest

FIVE CHANGES ARE MADE

Strength Of Invader Not Known; Sale Of Season
Ducats Continues

The stage was being set Friday for Circleville High School's first football game of the 1940 season, scheduled at 8 o'clock this evening against Columbus Holy Rosary. With perfect football weather prevailing and interest in the team high, a record crowd is being expected by school officials.

Faculty Manager Virgil Cress was busy Friday trying to arrange for a public address system, the field was being lined, the reserved section blocked off, the lighting system checked and cleaned, and everywhere everything was a bee-hive of activity.

Six of the boys who will start against Holy Rosary tonight were in the starting lineup last year when the Irish carried off a 13-6 victory, all the scoring being confined to the last two periods. The entire right side of the line, Martin at guard, Liston at tackle and Jackson at end will be back, and Brown who played center will be back in that post. The left side of the starting line will be entirely different, Crawford being at guard, Sabine at tackle and Tregoe at end. Last year Shea, Hill and Walters were on the left side.

Jenkins, Moorehead Named
Two of the starting backs will be the same, Jenkins being at left half and Moorehead at right half, with Geib taking Smith's place at quarterback and Staley taking Bowsher's old post at fullback.

High school authorities have not received an eligibility list from Rosary, so the number of changes in the invaders' lineup is not known. It is known that Johnny Winters, end; Chuck Bernhard and Dick Wein, halfbacks, and Pagli-one, halfback, will not be back. Returning ball toters will be Kappas, quarterback, and Finerman, fullback, both lads capable of playing good ball. The Irish can be expected to be tricky, since Coach Bud Keefe mentors them that way. Anything can be expected at any moment.

Three excellent officials, including Chuck Kotterba, Rodney Ross and W. K. Dunton, have been contracted to appear here tonight. Which one will referee, which will umpire and which will be head linesman will not be determined until the three arrive.

Season tickets entitling holders to seats in the reserved section continued on sale Friday. Kiwanians and Rotarians conducting the sale. Tickets will be available at the box office at the school, also.

edged out in the nightcap, 11 to 9. Kansas City moved into Minneapolis today for a final series with the Millers, who as of this morning were 4½ games behind the league leaders. A clean sweep of the remaining games would give Columbus and Minneapolis a chance at the pennant.

In the only other league tilt of yesterday, Indianapolis shoved Toledo into a tie with Milwaukee for last place by defeating the Mudhens 9 to 8 in 12 innings.

CIRCLEVILLE SCHOOL BOARD APPEALS BUDGET COMMISSION RULING

EDUCATORS ASK MORE MONEY TO OPERATE IN '40

Increase Of .2 Mill Turned Down By Circleville Authorities

FUND FIGURES DIFFER

Fischer Points Out Need For Repairs, Manual Training, Library Books

Circleville's latest school fight, that between the Pickaway County Budget Commission and the Circleville Board of Education, broke out Thursday when Lawrence Goeller, president of the board of education, informed the budget commission that the board would not accept the .2 mill increase granted it during Thursday's budget hearing, but would appeal to the State Tax Commission for an additional increase to which it was entitled by law.

Members of the board, who asked that the school's rate be increased to 2.36 mills, balked when the commission, after cutting the county rate .30 mills and the city 1.2 mills in order to grant the school an additional share of the county taxes and still stay within its three mill limitation, claimed that it could not possibly grant a further increase.

The increase it was willing to grant, the commission said, from .85 mills to 2.05 mills, would have amounted to about $10,000 additional funds. Board members denied that it would amount to this much. The commission maintains that under the rate offered the school, the city of Circleville stands to lose approximately $10,000 and the county $12,000 since their rates have been cut in order that the county remain within its three mill limitation.

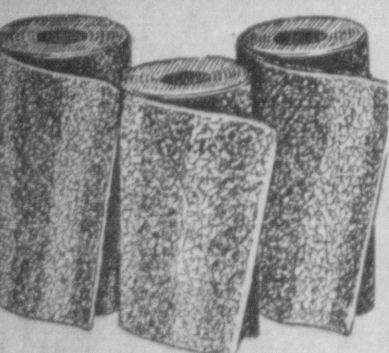

School authorities maintained that they were only asking for funds which were rightfully granted them by law, and said that it would be impossible for them to attempt to equip and repair the school with the funds granted them. Superintendent Frank Fischer pointed out that the old school buildings were badly in need of repair, adding that three of the four school buildings were very old—and in need of repair.

Supplementary reading material is needed in the school library, he said, reading material which should have been purchased years ago and additional manual training equipment and instruction is badly needed.

Last year, the school board received $34,276.29, an increase of $5,000 over the previous year. This year the commission was offering it $45,096. Under the 2.36 mill rate it is seeking from the state tax commission, it would receive $47,864.

WASHINGTON C. H., Sept. 13.—Claiming that one of the teachers was without a proper certificate, parents of ten children have refused to send their children to the Milledgeville school, and are endeavoring to have them admitted to the Jeffersonville School. Action of the board of education is expected within a few days.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY MAN TALKS AT WALNUT SCHOOL

Professor Homer Cotterman, of Capital University, spoke at the first meeting of the Walnut Township Parent-Teachers Association this week. The remainder of the program consisted of a vocal solo by Miss Elizabeth Reber and two piano numbers by Miss Donna Dill and Miss Joan Johnson.

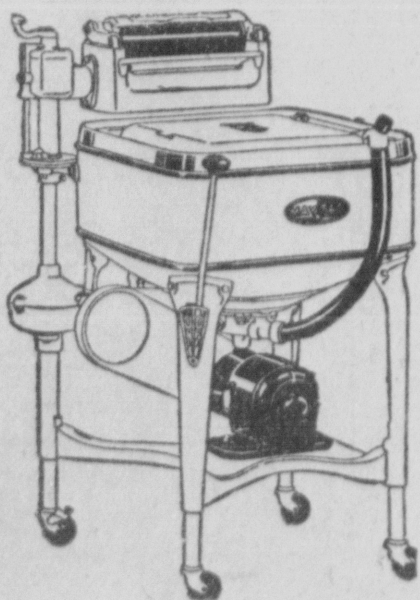

The Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff conducted a short devotional period, after which the association, during its business meeting, voted to hold an annual chicken supper. Following the program, everyone was invited to the dining room where a reception was held for the teachers. The hospitality committee, in charge of Mrs. Page McCray, served refreshments. President J. Arthur Sark was in charge of the meeting.

SEPT. 13 TEMPERATURE AT 42; YEAR AGO 90 TOUCHED

Circleville residents shivered Friday as they looked at their thermometers, which read 42 degrees and remembered that a year ago today they read 90. Highest mark reached Thursday was 64 degrees, Miss Abbe Mills Clarke of the local weather bureau said. Weather experts promised higher temperatures Friday and Saturday.

The Sophomore class will hold a reception for the Freshman class in the gymnasium of the High School building on Friday evening, September 13, at 7:30 p. m.

The Junior class, consisting of 10 boys and 20 girls, is conducting a magazine sales project or raise money for the class treasury.

George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, and his wife were guests of the Ashville-Harrison school faculty and wives at their first social function of the year—a steak fry with all the trimmings. Several of the teachers proved to be good Boy Scouts. Mr. and Mrs. Mahaffey and Mr. and Mrs. Carter, being new and unacquainted with the district, managed, with the help of some faculty directions by some of the natives of the county, to lose themselves in the maze of country roads on the way home from the outing. They managed to find their way back to Ashville unassisted.

Mrs. Carter, mother of Mr. Carter the Ashville coach, returned to Ashville this week to see Dr. Schiff for continued treatment of the injuries received in an accident last week on Highway No. 23 at the Duval Road.

All High School English classes are beginning their work with a unit on the Short Story. Students are encouraged to read outside books, papers, and magazines in addition to the short stories in their texts.

The Ashville High School Mixed Chorus, composed of Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, held its organization meeting and first practice Friday at 9 a. m. The chorus is directed by Miss Plum. The orchestra and band have been organized and are practicing industriously under the baton of Mr. Brobst.

Charles Hoover will be head manager of the Ashville Athletic and Physical Education Department for the coming year. Robert Peters and Glen Malone will serve as assistant managers for the 1940-41 term.

The Boys Physical Education classes are in full swing. Activity and instruction in touch football and speedball got under way following the assignment of lockers, lockers, choice of sports, instructions in use of locker room and showers, securing of physical education uniforms, etc.

The first all-school movie of the year will be shown Friday afternoon, September 13, Mr. Mahaffey is in charge of this portion of the high school program.

Ashville teachers are making arrangements to attend the first County Teachers' Meeting to be held Saturday, September 14, at the Jackson Township School.

JURY INDICTS SUSPECT

LIMA, Sept. 13.—George W. Grob, of Toledo, today stood indicted by the Allen County grand jury on charges of armed robbery. Police charged Grob admitted holdups in Delphos and Bluffton, both in Allen County, and in Sandusky and Elyria. The Toledoan was captured last month by State Highway Patrolman H. L. McAnan who recognized license plates used in the Sandusky holdup.

TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

Fred P. Long, Kingston, has been appointed administrator of the $9,258.68 estate of Alice L. May, Kingston. Next of kin in the estate is a daughter, Blanche F. Long, Kingston.

DERBY

At a meeting of the school board here Friday evening Miss Ruth DeMuth was promoted to principal which vacancy was caused by the resignation of L. L. Hill to accept a position in the Crestline schools, Audrey Clausus of Newark was hired to fill the vacancy in the high school.

The Derby Township Girls Four H Club contributed a fine first aid kit with complete contents, to the school last week. This act of generosity will be appreciated by all concerned.

A softball game has been scheduled for Friday with Scioto.

The first P. T. A. meeting will be held Friday night in the school with B. D. Redman and family of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Hill have bought an interest in the Heise filling station at the cross roads and have taken possession.

The Cherie Class of Methodist Church held their regular meeting with Mrs. Hattie Deyo of Columbus, Wednesday of this week.
